

NEWS

Belmont's Rotary Club learn about business organization and decluttering

Ted Hall

Published 7:59 a.m. ET May 23, 2022

An entrepreneur from Huntersville recently presented a program to Belmont's Rotary Club meant to help businesses organize and declutter.

Kim Wilhelm recently presented members of the Rotary Club with her personal slogan of organization, "Clear the clutter, clear your mind."

Wilhelm created a paper management, organization and decluttering service she calls "File the Pile." She helps businesses and individuals organize years of paper, digital documents and records.

The Rotary Club, a humanitarian service organization which brings together business and professional leaders, has become one of the oldest and largest international service organizations.

Rotary Club members shared in a statement how Wilhelm usually begins organizing with separating mounds of material into bins often labeled either save, shred or recycle.

"While organizing provides me a meaningful sense of personal accomplishment, I also find rewarding satisfaction in seeing the benefit it provides to clients," said Wilhelm.

"I am able to complete projects that I enjoy, while helping clients live their best life by having the time and energy to focus on what matters most to them," she added.

Ted Hall is a member of Belmont's Rotary Club.